VIOLENCE

The Battered Woman Syndrome

Third Edition

Lenore E. A. Walker, EdD

The third edition of The Battered Woman Syndrome integrates new research findings about the Battered Woman Syndrome and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Using data collected from multiple countries around the world, this new edition examines attachment issues for battered women and the men who batter them, the relationship with substance abuse, and risk factors for further abuse. The impact these issues have on the psychological health of battered women and treatment programs that can help women heal are also discussed in this new edition. A special section discusses working with women involved in the criminal justice system, including battered women who kill their abusive partners in self-defense.

Strengths-Based Batterer Intervention

A New Paradigm in Ending Family Violence

Peter Lehmann, PhD, LCSW; Catherine Simmons, PhD, Editors

This book provides readers with new and innovative ways to approach intervention with Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) offenders, one based on strengths rather than deficits. Using emerging theories about batterer intervention techniques, the book forges a new direction in the field.

Key Features:

- Includes positive psychology, strengths-based theory, solution-focused practice, narrative practice, and motivational interviewing
- Assessment tools, exercises, and program evaluation techniques guide readers in applying emerging theories into successful practice
- Intervention protocols, limitations of techniques described, and case studies showing how the model works with actual clients

Motivational Interviewing and Stages of Change in Intimate Partner Violence

Christopher Murphy, PhD; Roland D. Maiuro, PhD, Editors

Written by established authorities in the field, the chapters in this volume represent important applications of motivational enhancement strategies to intimate partner violence with both victims and batterers. These studies include descriptive research on victims and perpetrators of abuse, measurement issues in assessing stages of change, and real-world applications of motivational interviewing. Murphy and Maiuro illustrate both the benefits and challenges inherent in this growing area of research.

Sex Offender Laws Failed Policies, New Directions

Richard G. Wright, PhD, Editor

"[This book] covers every major field of research concerning sex offenders and sexual offenses, and provides evidence of bad practices and policies. Intellectually honest politicians should read this book."

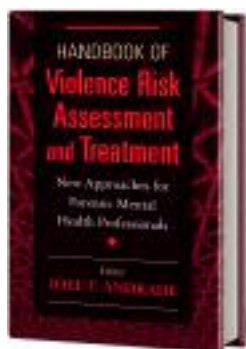

—Michael Tonry, LL.B,
University of Minnesota Law School (From the Foreword)

In this book, Wright critically analyzes existing sex offender policies, and assesses the most effective approaches in preventing sex offender recidivism. This provocative and timely book draws from the fields of criminal justice, law, forensic psychology, and social work. In response to the failed policies of sex offender laws, this book presents alternative models and approaches to sex offense laws and policies. Wright also explores critical, cutting-edge topics, such as Internet sexual solicitation, the death penalty, and community responses to sex offense.

Key Features:

- An introduction and overview of the history of sex offender laws
- Analyzes the role of the media in sex offense cases and sex offender policies
- Examines the political “untouchability” of sex offender laws and their adverse effects
- Features interviews with victims of sexual assault, presenting their opinions on what kinds of reforms need to be made to sex offender laws

Handbook of Violence Risk Assessment and Treatment

New Approaches for Mental Health Professionals

Joel T. Andrade, LICSW, MSW

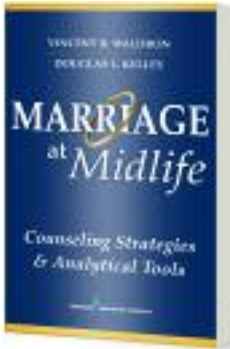

Forensic mental health practitioners are confronted with the difficult task of assessing the risk that offenders pose to the general public. This comprehensive volume provides practitioners with the knowledge and insight necessary to conduct violence risk assessments and to synthesize clinical and research data into comprehensive reports and oral testimony. With numerous clinical case studies, this book illustrates the process of conducting violence risk assessments, outlines the tools used in these evaluations, and explains how information is translated into an overall assessment and guide for future risk management.

Key Features:

- Investigates the etiology of violent behavior, and provides a review and analysis of recent literature
- Discusses both adult and youth violence, providing insight into the developmental course of aggressive behavior throughout the lifespan
- Contains chapters on special populations, including female offenders, intimate partners, psychopathic and mentally ill offenders, and sexually abusive youth
- Useful to practitioners from various fields including social work, psychology, psychiatry, as well as students in these disciplines

Cognitive Behavior Therapy for Children Treating Complex and Refractory Cases

Dean McKay, PhD, ABPP; Eric Storch, PhD, Editors

“The chapters...provide a valuable guide that researchers can turn to in their efforts to expand the current evidence base for child and adolescent psychological treatments.”

—Wendy K. Silverman, PhD, ABPP

Professor of Psychology, Florida International University

(From the Foreword)

This book brings together experts in the treatment of psychological conditions in children and adolescents. Each chapter includes a description of currently available empirically supported cognitive behavior therapy (CBT) interventions, factors that would limit outcome in therapy, a case illustration that highlights the prognostic indicators that would interfere with treatment outcome, and guidelines on managing these specific limiting conditions. The contributors also discuss conditions that have typically been associated with poorer outcomes.

Key Features

- Describes currently available empirically supported CBT interventions
- Highlights “treatment failures” and presents tailored treatments to cases with complicating factors
- Includes child specific diagnoses, clinical challenges, and associated clinical management issues
- Presents case illustrations for each condition that highlights potential interference with positive treatment outcome

Bullying, Rejection, and Peer Victimization

A Social Cognitive Neuroscience Perspective

Monica J. Harris, PhD, Editor

This is the only book on the market to examine bullying, teasing, and victimization in child, adolescent, and adult populations from a social cognitive neuroscience perspective.

The book also provides comprehensive coverage on bullying, offering in-depth analyses on traditional aggression and victimization (physical bullying) as well as social rejection (emotional bullying). The contributors also examine both the perpetrator and victim sides of the peer victimization experience, as well as the broader social context involved in the victimization process. Peer and family relationships, relational aggression, and cyber-bullying are just a few of the important topics discussed.

Key Features:

- Explores gender differences in responses to aggression
- Investigates how family dynamics influence chronic peer victimization
- Examines the relationships between social status, power, and aggression

COUNSELING

The Professional Counselor's Desk Reference

Irmo Marini, PhD, CRC, CLCP;
Mark A. Stebnicki, PhD, LPC, CRC, CCM, Editors

"An excellent resource for the counseling student as well as the practicing counselor. It is well-written and comprehensive without being overwhelming. A must for every counselor's and future counselor's library!"

—Donna Falvo, PhD, CRC,
Professor, University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill Medical School

Drs. Marini and Stebnicki present this quick, user-friendly desk reference guide based on the core content and knowledge areas outlined in both the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs (CACREP) and Council on Rehabilitation Education (CORE) accreditation standards.

With contributions from 95 experts in counselor education, research, and practice, this book includes:

- Bulleted "how to" strategies for working with clients under various models in counseling and psychology
- Guidelines for conducting interviews and assessments with culturally diverse clients, as well as treatment protocols that suggest evidence-based practices
- Discussions on counselor impairments such as empathy fatigue, and developing a plan of self-care to prevent counselor burnout
- A comprehensive self-exam of 323 multiple-choice items based on the CORE/CACREP core content and knowledge areas for counselor education and training

Understanding Psychosocial Adjustment to Chronic Illness and Disability

A Handbook for Evidence-Based Practitioners in Rehabilitation

Fong Chan, PhD; Elizabeth da Silva Cardoso, PhD;
Julie A. Chronister, PhD, Editors

This book provides in-depth coverage of the major psychosocial and stress process theories and interventions, and explores how these models and techniques can be applied to rehabilitation populations.

In addition, the book covers important issues in the adjustment process of persons with disabilities and chronic illness. It offers chapters that explore psychosocial adjustment within the context of positive psychology, psychiatric rehabilitation, and persons with substance abuse issues. Finally, the chapters are written from an evidence-based practice perspective, emphasizing the empirical basis of the models and interventions explained, and their effectiveness with rehabilitation related populations.

Couples, Gender, and Power

Creating Change in Intimate Relationships

Carmen Knudson-Martin, PhD; Anne Rankin Mahoney, PhD, Editors

Written for mental health professionals and others interested in contemporary couple relationships, this research-based book shows how couples are able to move beyond the dangers of gendered inequality and the legacy of hidden male power.

Explores these key issues:

- The risks of being in a relationship ruled by “gender legacy” behavior
- The differences between couples who get caught in gender legacy patterns and those who do not
- Gender-based patterns across the life cycle, including newly formed couples; early marriage; child-rearing; mothering and fathering

Ethical Practice in Grief Counseling

Louis A. Gamino, PhD, ABPP, FT; R. Hal Ritter, Jr., PhD, LPC, LMFT

“[A]n invaluable resource on ethics for professionals who inevitably will struggle with ethical dilemmas”

—J. William Worden, PhD, ABPP

Author, Grief Counseling and Grief Therapy

This book compiles the major areas of ethical concern in grief counseling, including the concept of “death competence” on the part of the grief counselor, as well as several other potentially problematic areas: confidentiality; end-of-life issues; dual relationships; challenges posed by unnatural deaths; spiritual and cultural considerations; children’s issues; and pitfalls of public service.

In exploring these ethical challenges, case materials are utilized to illustrate the complexity of ethical decision-making, and to provide a vehicle for exploring alternate conceptual models.

Current Perspectives on the Anxiety Disorders

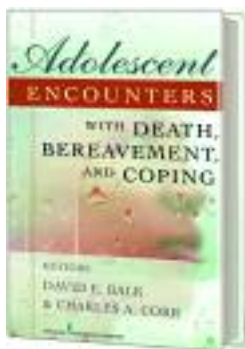

Implications for DSM-V and Beyond

Dean McKay, PhD; Jonathan S. Abramowitz, PhD, ABPP ; Steven Taylor, PhD, ABPP; Gordon J. G. Asmundson, PhD, Editors

This text provides in-depth coverage of the diagnostic and conceptual issues related to the classification of anxiety disorders. Several groups of investigators have begun to consider revisions to the classification of anxiety disorders. There are numerous empirical issues ranging from neurochemical bases of specific fears, to cognitive biases, to fear circuitry that are evident across anxiety problems. These empirical developments set the stage for a closer examination of how these disorders are classified. This book covers the full spectrum of empirical approaches used in the study, diagnosis, and classification of anxiety problems.

Grief and Loss Across the Lifespan A Biopsychosocial Perspective

Carolyn A. Walter, PhD, LCSW;
Judith L. M. McCoyd, PhD, LCSW, QCSW

“The volume is well written and intelligent; offering practical strategies for the clinician working with clients of all ages. This text is a must have for bereavement counselors in palliative care, hospice, and other care settings.”

—Paige E. Payne, MS, MSW, LSW
Support Services Manager

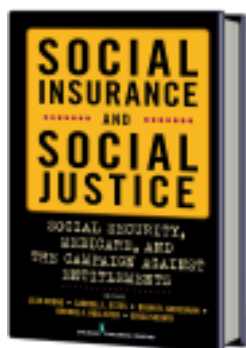

Pinnacle Health Home Care and Hospice

This text is unique in its goal to examine grief and loss from a biopsychosocial perspective. The authors address death experiences across the lifespan along with identification and intervention strategies for normative losses. This text is arranged to utilize a developmental framework so that each level of development from infancy through aging is addressed in four ways:

- Reviewing normal developmental issues for the age in question, particularly the abilities and challenges specific to that age
- Analyzing how individuals of that age cope with the loss of a significant other, including how they may experience life threatening illness themselves
- Addressing how significant others react to and mourn the death of someone in that age range
- Identifying the normative losses a person is likely to experience, and addressing protective and risky ways of coping with those losses

SOCIAL POLICY

Social Insurance and Social Justice

Social Security, Medicare and the Campaign Against Entitlements

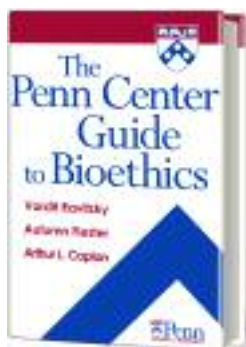

Leah Rogne, PhD; Carroll Estes, PhD; Brian Grossman, ScM;
Brooke Hollister; Erica Solway, MSW, MPH, Editors

Despite widespread reliance on social insurance programs, many business and political interests have engaged in a concerted, decades-long campaign to undermine confidence in them. As attacks on social programs have increased over the last two decades and as current efforts to establish some kind of universal health insurance are hotly debated—teachers in higher education have struggled for compelling resources to prepare their students to understand, influence, and engage in an informed debate about social policy.

Social Insurance and Social Justice offers such a resource. Featuring the voices of esteemed scholars from a wide cross-section of disciplines including gerontology, public health, social work, sociology, political science, and more, this comprehensive volume reviews the history of social programs, and provides a framework for understanding current policy debates.

The Penn Center Guide to Bioethics

Vardit Ravitsky, PhD; Autumn Fiester, PhD;
Arthur L. Caplan, PhD, Editors

The Center for Bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania is the internationally recognized leader in bioethical education and research. Arthur L. Caplan, the Center's founding director, is recognized as one of the most influential experts in the field of American medicine and health care. Now, Caplan combines his expertise with Senior Fellows of the Penn Center, Vardit Ravitsky and Autumn Fiester in The Penn Center Guide to Bioethics. With sixty-eight chapters written by eighty experts, the Guide, written in accessible language, provides an integrated overview of this important and complex field. Starting with sections that present both classical and emerging topics in bioethics, the book journeys through the bioethical challenges faced along the life course, from reproduction through childhood, to the end of life.

The Guide contains chapters on controversial topics such as:

- Neuroethics
- Research misconduct
- Conscientious refusals by physicians
- Human gene patenting and biobanks
- Making decisions for children

The International Encyclopedia of Depression

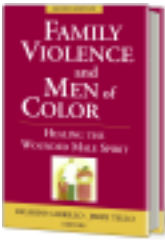

Rick E. Ingram, PhD, Editor

There is no more central topic to mental health professionals than depression. In the last 20 years, theory and research in depression has grown rapidly. The wealth of information now available on depression is enormous, but has not been summarized into a comprehensive encyclopedia until now. Entries include Behavioral Treatment, Cognitive Theories, Cognitive Therapy, Epidemiology, Heredity, Personality Disorders, Double Depression, and Prevention.

In summarizing the vast amount of information on depression, The International Encyclopedia of Depression serves as an important resource for researchers, patients, students, and educated laypeople. This book presents holistic, interdisciplinary coverage of an important but misunderstood medical disorder.
